Interpretation of General Order No. 107

ORDER OF THE CHIEF JUDGE

When General Order No. 107 was adopted by the Court, it was the intention of the Court to provide a bail forfeiture plan which would make appearances by persons charged with certain offenses unnecessary if such persons preferred to post bail by mail and forfeit the same to avoid the inconvenience of an appearance in answer to a citation. This program was intended to be used by all agencies issuing citations for such violations.

On January 10, 1972, at a regular meeting of the Judges it was resolved that General Order No. 107 should be amended on the original by the Clerk as indicated below. Accordingly, in conformity with the said resolution,

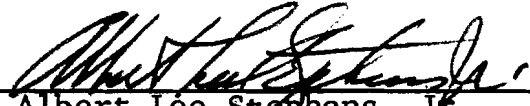

IT IS ORDERED that the first three lines of said order shall be interpreted and applied as though the word and letter which are shown stricken below had been omitted:

"Persons charged with violation of any offense listed on Exhibit A attached hereto, whether originating under ~~the~~ applicable federal statute or regulations or . . ."

The use of the bail forfeiture procedure provided for in General Order No. 107 is available to all federal agencies authorized to issue citations for such offenses.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk shall place a copy of this order in the book of General Orders following General Order No. 107 as indicating his authority to make the change indicated on the original order.

DATED: January 12, 1972.

Albert Lee Stephens, Jr.
Chief Judge
